GWU SPONSORS CONFERENCE TO EVALUATE

INSTRUCTIONAL MATERIALS FOR HANDICAPPED CHILDREN

The first conference concerned specifically with the evaluation of instruction material for handicapped children will be held at the Washington Hilton Hotel on April 5 and 6. The conference is sponsored by the Special Education Instructional Materials Center, Department of Special Education, of The George Washington University.

George Washington is one of a nationwide network of Special Education Instructional Materials Centers funded by the Bureau of Education for the Handicapped, U.S. Office of Education. The long range goal of these programs is to provide special educators and other related professional personnel with ready access to valid instructional materials and information for the education of handicapped children and youth.

Representatives from the 14 Instructional Materials Centers, which serve the United States, Pacific territories, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, will be included among the participants. Professional leaders in the field of special education will also attend.

NATIONAL FORENSICS CONFERENCE AT GW

The national conference of Delta Sigma Rho-Tau Kappa Alpha, national honorary forensics fraternity, will be held in Washington, D.C., April 7 through 10, 1968, with The George Washington University the host institution.

Some 500 delegates from 99 collegiate chapters in 39 states and the District of Columbia are expected at the conference, being held for the first time in the East. George F. Henigan, Professor of Speech and Director of Forensics at George Washington is director of the conference. National president of Delta Sigma Rho-Tau Kappa Alpha is Dr. Leroy T. Laase, chairman of the department of speech and drama at the University of Nebraska.

The conference will include 587 debates, 48 contests in persuasive speaking, 82 contests in extempore speaking and a National Student Congress.

"Resolved that the Congress of the United States should guarantee a minimum annual cash income for all citizens", the intercollegiate debate proposition of the year, will be the subject of the debates to be held in classrooms on the GW campus. Both two-man and four-man teams will debate the question. Semi-finals and finals of the two-man debates will be held on Capitol Hill. Semi-finals are scheduled Wednesday afternoon, April 10, at 2:00 p.m. in Rooms 154 and 155 of the Old Senate Office Building with finals taking place in the Auditorium of the New Senate Office Building at 3:15 p.m. Following the finals, national champions will be announced in two-man and four-man debate, and superior achievement awards will be given in three categories: for extempore speaking, for persuasive speaking, and for work in the student congress.

The National Student congress (72 students) will meet concurrently at the Willard Hotel while the debates are going on on the GW campus. "What Should be the U.S. Policy Towards South Vietnam?" is the topic to be dealt with by the congress. Students have designated themselves as liberals or conservatives and will separate into caucuses and working committees on military, socio-economic, and geographical policies. Wednesday morning, April 10, from 8:30 a.m. to 12:00 noon, liberals and conservatives will meet in joint session to debate policies and draft legislation. Co-chairmen of the congress are Professor Kenneth Anderson, Visiting Professor at the University of Southern California, and Professor Edward L. Stevens, Professor of Speech at George Washington.

The awards banquet will be held on Tuesday evening, April 9, 1968, at 7:00 p.m. in the Grand Ballroom of the Willard Hotel. National awards to be presented include the Speaker of the Year, a special award for distinguished speaking over a lifetime, and two distinguished alumni awards. Recipients are not announced until the banquet.

George Washington University President Lloyd H. Elliott will welcome the guests at the banquet. Musical entertainment will be provided by the WAVES Chorus.

The conference opens Sunday night, April 7, with registration at the Willard Hotel from 6:00 to 8:00 p.m. Debates begin Monday morning, April 8, at George Washington, with the National Student Congress running concurrently at the Willard.

ERIC SEVAREID AND NORMAN THOMAS HONORED

Eric Sevareid, commentator for the Columbia Broadcasting System, received the annual speaker of the Year Award of Delta Sigma Rho-Tau Kappa Alpha, national forensic honorary, Tuesday evening, April 9, 1968, during the national conference of the honorary. The award was made in a ceremony at the Willard Hotel where the 417 students attending the conference were housed.

The award was presented by Dr. James L. Golden, Professor of Speech at Ohio State University and Chairman of the Speaker of the Year Board.

In the same ceremony, Norman Thomas, six-time Socialist presidential candidate, was honored in absentia with a special award "in recognition of his distinguished contribution to American public address in the 20th century." Thomas' award was made by George P. Lamb, Washington atttorney, and originator of the idea of the Speaker of the Year Award.

The citation for Sevareid said in part:

"Mr. Sevareid stands squarely in the tradition of other outstanding American leaders who have demonstrated the classical virtues of wisdom and courage, and have fulfilled the hope expressed by Aristotle when he said that rhetoric should strive mightily to make 'truth and justice prevail'... The members of the Speaker of the Year Board salute him because he has consistently spoken with intelligence, responsibility, and effectiveness on vital issues of the day."

Sevareid is a two-time winner of the award, having received it also in 1956. Other recipients, since the award's establishment in 1949, have included the late President John F. Kennedy, evangelist Billy Graham, and Senator Edward W. Brooke (R-Mass.)

The George Washington University was the host institution for the conference. GWU Professor of Speech George F. Henigan served as director. National president of the forensics honorary is Dr. Leroy T. Laase, Chairman of the Department of Speech and Drama at the University of Nebraska.

HEART SURGEON CHRISTIAAN BARNARD TO LECTURE AT GW APRIL 19

South African heart surgeon, Professor Christiaan N. Barnard, will deliver the Tompkins Memorial Lecture in Surgery of The George Washington University School of Medicine on Friday, April 19, at 3 p.m., in GW's Lisner Auditorium.

Professor Barnard, who headed the 30-man team performing the first human heart transplant last December, will discuss "What We Have Learned from Cardiac Transplants." The team's second transplant patient, dentist Philip Blaiberg, was released recently from Groote Schuur Hospital in Cape Town.

The Charles H. Tompkins Memorial Lectureships were endowed for the Department of Surgery at the School of Medicine by the family and friends of the late Washington contractor and civil engineer whose company erected a substantial number of the University's buildings. An alumnus and Trustee of GWU, Mr. Tompkins died in 1957.

Medical students will be released from their regular classes to attend Professor Barnard's lecture featuring the surgical and medical techniques used in the transplant procedure.

Other Tompkins lecturers have included Doctors Nathan Womack, William H. Muller, Jr., Jonathan E. Rhoads, Howard Bradshaw, Robert J. Coffey, O. T. Clagett, Andrew Logan of Scotland, and the late Alfred Blalock of blue baby operation fame.

DR. ROBERT ADLER NAMED INVENTOR-OF-THE-YEAR BY GW PATENT, TRADEMARK, AND COPYRIGHT RESEARCH INSTITUTE

Dr. Robert Adler, scientist and inventor in the field of electronic products, devices and systems used in aircraft communications, radar, and TV receivers and FM broadcasting, has been named by The George Washington University's Patent, Trademark, and Copyright Research Institute to receive its 1967 Inventor-of-the-Year Award.

Dr. Adler is Vice President and Director of Research of the Zenith Radio Corporation.

The Inventor-of-the-Year Award honors a journeyman or professional inventor who has made a significant patented invention or inventions. The Award affords an opportunity to recognize an inventor who overcomes obstacles and expends his resources to produce an invention or inventions.

Dr. Adler's most significant recent contribution has been his co-invention of a stereo FM system which permits the public to enjoy FM broadcasts in full FM stereophonic sound, which is now used by more than 500 FM stereo stations, and is incorporated in most radio-phonograph combinations and FM tuners.

Innovations for broadcasting, TV and radio reception are only part of his contribution to electronics, however. His work on electromechanical filters led the way to the development of the compact filter now widely used in aircraft receivers. The original work of a research team headed by Dr. Adler led to the 1966 public demonstration by Zenith of a TV display that used ultrasonic diffraction and modulation of a laser beam to produce a wall-size TV picture with the quality of image comparable to today's TV picture, without the cathode-ray tube.

Both as a single and co-inventor, Dr. Adler has been issued more than 100 patents. He developed the ultrasonic remote control on TV, which later earned him the 1958 Outstanding Technical Achievement Award of the Institute of Radio Engineers Professional Group on Broadcast and TV Receivers. Additional work during his highly productive career has made significant contributions to transverse-field traveling wave tubes and most recently in the field of acoustic-optical interaction.

Dr. Adler is the author of many technical publications and papers. He is a Fellow of the Institute of Radio Engineers, a member of the National Academy of Engineering and a Fellow of the American Association for Advancement of Science.

Dr. Adler was selected for the Award by a Board of Awards composed of the following members: The Honorable Edward J. Brenner, Commissioner of Patents; Dr. Leonard Carmichael, Vice President for Research and Exploration, The National Geographical Society, Former Secretary, the Smithsonian Institution; Dr. Michael Ference, Jr., Vice President Research, Ford Motor Company; Dr. W. E. Hanford, Vice President Research and Development, Olin Mathieson Chemical Corporation; Dr. Earl T. McBee, Head, Department of Chemistry, Purdue University; Dr. Glenn A. Nesty, Vice President Research and Development, Allied Chemical Corporation; Dr. Max Tishler, President, Merck, Sharp and Dohme.

Dr. Adler will be presented the Award at a reception in his honor to be held April 25, in Washington, D.C.

L. JAMES HARRIS NAMED RECIPIENT OF

JEFFERSON MEDAL FROM NEW JERSEY PATENT LAW ASSOCIATION

L. James Harris, Director of The Patent, Trademark, and Copyright Research Institute of The George Washington University, has been awarded the Jefferson Medal from the New Jersey Patent Law Association. This award is given, once each year, to the individual, who in the opinion of the Medal Committee and the Board of Managers of the Association, has made important contributions in the field of patents, trademarks, and copyrights. Former Supreme Court Justice Tom C. Clark received the award last year.

Professor Harris has been associated with The Patent, Trademark and Copyright Research Institute at GW since 1953. In 1954, he was appointed Executive Director and has been administering the Institute and directing its research programs since that date. Upon the retirement of Admiral O. S. Colcough, the former Director, Professor Harris was named to succeed him and assumed overall supervision of the Institute.

The award recipient is the editor of IDEA, The Patent, Trademark, and Copyright Journal of Research and Education, as well as other publications of the Institute, such as the PTC DIGEST; The Patent System All Around You; The Trademark--The Maker's Monogram; and "What Do You Know About...?" series. He has organized and spoken at many meetings dealing with industrial and intellectual property and is the author of many papers on the subject. He is Principal Investigator on four major research projects of the Institute and his publications include a series of reports and articles on Latin-American Industrial Property Systems; Positive Competition, Trade Secrets; Attitudes toward Current Intellectual Property Systems; Underlying Aspects of U.S. Patent Statutes; and Nature and Direction of Legal and Economic Research in Industrial Property.

Prior to his appointment to the Institute, Professor Harris served as Committee Counsel to the Judiciary Committee, House of Representatives, and Counsel to its Subcommittee on Patents, Trademarks, and Copyrights. He also directed the actual work of preparing the preliminary drafts and the bill that culminated in the Patent Act of 1952, which is in effect today. Professor Harris attended Cornell, Harvard, St. Lawrence, and George Washington Universities. He is presently a Professor of Law at GW.

Professor Harris is a member of the New York, District of Columbia, and U.S. Supreme Court Bars; and is registered to practice before the U.S. Patent Office. He serves on the Executive Committee of the Advisory Council of the Group Health Association, Inc. of Washington, and is Co-Chairman of the Advisory Committee on Industrial and Intellectual Property of The World Peace Through Law Center in Geneva, Switzerland.

The Medal will be presented to Professor Harris at the Jefferson Medal Dinner, May 3, in Newark, N. J.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE, FRIDAY, APRIL 19, 1968

NEW PROGRAM TO PREPARE MINORITY AMERICANS FOR USIA FOREIGN SERVICE

The U. S. Information Agency announced today a new long-range program to prepare applicants from minority communities for careers in the USIA Foreign Service. To be known as the Foreign Affairs Intern Program, it will combine on-the-job training at USIA with graduate study at The George Washington University's School of Public and International Affairs in Washington, D. C. All academic costs, and expenses for cultural activities, will be funded from a Ford Foundation grant of $145,530 to the University. Additionally, each intern will receive a stipend from USIA to cover living costs.

In announcing the internships Leonard H. Marks, Director of USIA, said, "Not only will this program contribute to the development of career opportunities for our minority citizens, but it will add a new dimension to USIA's mission of furthering world understanding of the United States, its policies, institutions and culture. I am looking forward to welcoming these interns as trained communicators in our career Foreign Service."

Applications for the internships may be made by recent college graduates or those who will graduate in June 1968 with a bachelor's degree from an accredited college or university. Other requirements include a serious career interest in the USIA Foreign Service, with a willingness to serve anywhere most needed, worldwide.

Further information on the program may be obtained by writing USIA's Recruitment and Source Development Division, 1776 Pennsylvania Avenue, N. W., Washington, D. C. 20547.

KINGMAN BREWSTER, JR.

TO SPEAK AT GEORGE WASHINGTON

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES

Kingman Brewster, Jr., seventeenth President of Yale University, will deliver the address at the 147th Annual Commencement of the George Washington University to be held in the University Yard, Sunday, June 2, 1968, at 8:00 p.m. (Constitution Hall if rain).

President Brewster will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws at the exercise.

George Washington University President Lloyd H. Elliott will confer degrees and deliver the traditional charge to the graduates.

Prior to his election as president of Yale in 1963, Mr. Brewster had served as Provost of Yale, the university's chief educational officer directly under the president. A 1941 graduate of Yale, President Brewster is a lawyer by training, although he has never engaged in private practice. He served on the faculty at M.I.T. (1949-50) and at the Harvard Law School (1950-60) before returning to Yale in 1960 as Professor of Law. He became Provost in 1961. He has served the United States Government in various capacities and was a naval aviator in World War II.

GW RANKED FOURTH IN GRADUATE SCHOOL STANDINGS

A report recently published as a book by the Brookings Institution, Washington, D.C. places George Washington University, fourth, behind Harvard, Yale and Columbia in a table of "graduate schools attended by the largest percentage of federal political executives." Oxford ranks fifth, while Georgetown is listed as eighth in the standings.

Entitled Men Who Govern, and written by David T. Stanley, Dean E. Mann, and Jameson W. Doig, the biographical profile of political executives describes the roles and career characteristics of the more than 1000 persons selected by five Presidents, from Franklin D. Roosevelt to Lyndon B. Johnson, by examining the qualifications and tenure of these appointees as shown by statistical analysis of an extensive collection of data.

According to the authors, approximately two-thirds of the political executives, described as persons who have served in a cabinet or military department, agency or commission position, have attended graduate schools, and the better known, larger universities are prominent in the count.

Distinctive patterns emerge when educational levels are compared across department and agency lines. The highest concentration of master's degrees are among the social workers, educators and other specialists of Health, Education, and Welfare, the economists and administrative specialists of the Bureau of the Budget and the professionals of the Department of State.

"THE UNITED STATES AND EASTERN EUROPE"

"The United States and Eastern Europe" will be the subject for discussion at The George Washington University American Assembly to be held at Airlie House in Warrenton, Virginia, May 2 through 5, 1968.

Some 70 participants representing a cross section from the fields of education, government, business and industry, communications, and the military will take part in the four-day meeting. They will be divided into small discussion groups to exchange ideas and opinions on such subjects as trade with Eastern Europe, ways of reducing tension, and political, economic, and cultural problems connected to the whole spectrum of East-West relationships. The fourth day, in plenary session, they will adopt a report of findings and recommendations.

George Washington University President Lloyd H. Elliott will welcome the participants to the conference jointly sponsored by The Institute for Sino-Soviet Studies and The College of General Studies of The George Washington University and The American Assembly, Columbia University.

Representative Clement J. Zablocki of Wisconsin will speak the first evening, May 2, on "The United States-Eastern European Relations: An Overview."

Senator Albert Gore of Tennessee will speak on Saturday, May 4, on "United States-Eastern European Relations: Political Aspects."

Other speakers during the conference will include: Professor William E. Griffith, Director, Project on International Communism, Center for International Studies, M. I. T., on foreign policy aspects; Professor Richard F. Staar, The

BLACK ARTS AND ENTERTAINMENT FESTIVAL

The Black Students' Union of the George Washington University will present a city-wide "Black Arts and Entertainment Festival" on Saturday and Sunday, May 4 and May 5, 1968, 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. The project is the first of its kind. Displays and entertainment will be held at the University Yard on H Street between 20th and 21st Streets, N.W. The art exhibit will open at the GWU Gallery in Lisner Auditorium at 12 noon, Saturday, featuring works by Alma Thomas and Sam Gilliam, two local black artists.

Some 2,000 D.C. young people will be bussed to the GW campus for the Festival.

The Festival is intended to involve the George Washington University campus with the inner-city community in an effort to create a greater awareness of black peoples' contributions to, and achievements in, American culture.

Displays will include architectural drawings and models, photography, literary works, fine arts, and fashions. Among the Festival entertainers scheduled to date are Sam and Dave and the Unifics, who will be appearing at Shady Grove Saturday evening. Heading the list of local entertainers are the Ric Powell Trio and the Lloyd McNeill Quartet. Toast and Strawberries is presenting the fashion show and the Discount Book Shop is providing books for the literary exhibit.

In case of rain, the displays and entertainment will be held in the Men's Gymnasium, 2010 H Street, N.W.

The project was coordinated through the Youth Unit of the Government of the District of Columbia.

Miss Peggy Cooper, a GW student who is chairman of the Festival, feels that such affairs should be held on a national scale.
